POSSES TAKE UP CHASE

Engineer Sam Olson Is Shot When He Refuses to Stop as Directed—Automobile Awaits Highwaymen in North Dakota Town.

United Press Telegram.
BUFFALO, N. D., July 20.—Flying to the southwest in a racing automobile, the latest accessory of the modern bandit, and pursued by a large posse, are three bandits who at 1 o'clock this morning held up east-bound train No. 2 on the Northern Pacific, shot Engineer Sam Olson and secured a large amount of booty from the sleeping passengers in the Pullman cars.

The robbery occurred near Tower City, a few miles from here. The bandits boarded the train at some point where a stop was made, and when near Tower City one of the men climbed across the tender and at the point of a pistol, ordered Olson to stop the train. This the engineer refused to do and the bandits fired several shots at him, two taking effect, but not inflicting fatal wounds. In the meantime, two other masked men were rifling the sleeping cars and coaches, searching every passenger at the point of a pistol. The exact amount of the booty could not be learned here; but it is said to have been considerably in excess of $1,000.

The men, still wearing their masks, remained on the train until it reached the outskirts of this city; then as it slowed down, they leaped off and ran to a waiting automobile, jumped in and sped away to the southwest, passing through Tower City, where the robbery had been committed, and on into the open country toward the foothills. Officers at all points within a radius of 100 miles were immediately notified by telephone and already a dozen suspects are under arrest. Sixty picked men under United States Marshal James Shea and Sheriff Boyle of Cass county immediately started in pursuit of the bandits. They are accompanied by Fireman Graves for the purpose of identifying the men if they are captured.

SOMERSET, July 20.—Talmage Walter, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob J. Walter, about 7 o'clock this morning shot and perhaps fatally wounded Daniel Saylor, the six year old son of Daniel W. Saylor, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel at Somerset. For some days the boys have been sleeping in a tent on the Saylor lot. The recent drilling of Company C preparing for the encampment had stirred a martial spirit in the lads and they had been living in boyish imitation of the soldiers.

BROUGHT TO HOSPITAL.

Eight Days Ago Slavish Husband Administered Terrible Punishment Upon Her.

A Slavish woman, about 45 years of age, was brought to the hospital this morning suffering from cuts and bruises alleged to have been inflicted eight days ago by a brutal husband. The woman is in such serious condition that it was necessary for her to be brought here. That she survived the terrible beating, that had been inflicted was due only to her rugged constitution.

As the hospital it was impossible to learn details of the inhuman treatment to which the unfortunate woman had been subjected. The patient, harly conscious, is unable to speak English and the man who accompanied her was no better versed in the use of the language. It is understood there have been no arrests in the case. Besides an ugly gash in her head, the woman's body was covered with bruises. Her wrist, arms and legs seemed to have received the brunt of the beating. The authorities will likely conduct an investigation into the matter after the woman's story can be obtained through the medium of an interpreter.

Out in Force.

CHRISTIANS ON AN OUTING

While Millers Are Enjoying Band
Music and Other Amusements at Killarney, Sunday School Will Hold Forth at Oniopolis.

The shower which began falling shortly before 2 o'clock this morning put a damper upon the two big picnics that left town today for the mountains. Despite the unfavorable weather, however, 187 tickets were sold to Killarney park, where the Miller family is holding its annual reunion. Those in attendance will be greatly in excess of the number, however, because Springfield and Sallik township is plentifully dotted with Miller families, and a little rain did not deter the country folks from attending.

The Tenth Regiment Band went along to furnish music for the occasion. There will be a great time at the park because the Millers expect to relapse former reunions for jollity and good fellowship, even if the number that attended last year cannot be surpassed.

Beside the tribe of Miller which went mountainward, the Sunday school of the Christian church held its annual picnic at Oniopolis. About 100 were in attendance, one car of No. 48 being assigned to that party. It was filled and some of the Christians overflew into other coaches. Including the baggage car there were 10 coaches on No. 48 this morning, three having been reserved for the Millers and one for the Christians. The Sunday school picnicers will hold forth on the Fennell grounds.

Advance Detail
Leaves for Camp

The advance detail of Company D left this morning for Homer City, Indiana county, where the brigade encampment of the National Guard of Pennsylvania will be held this year. Tomorrow morning Company D, the regimental band and hospital corps will leave over the Pennsylvania railroad in a special train which is scheduled to depart at 8 A. M.

The advance detail was in charge of Corporal Mittie. He was accompanied by Privates Barnes, Barnett, Lynn, Smith, Pickett, Szabewski, DeWitt and Dilworth. When the main body of Company D reaches Homer City tomorrow it will find that much of the heavy work has been done by the advance detail.

William Baldwin, Veteran, Here

William Baldwin, the veteran blacksmith of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, came from Broad Ford this morning to visit in Connellsville for the first time since he recovered from a serious stroke which endangered his life some months ago.

Mr. Baldwin was the first blacksmith employed by H. C. Frick, it is said, and was first employed between 38 and 40 years ago at Novelty mine. He is visiting his daughter, Mrs. C. F. Bishop, in Connellsville.

SOMERSET HEROES GET ROUSING SEND-OFF.

Town Enthusiastic Over Company C and Rockwood Band
Will Celebrate Departure.

Special to The Courier.
SOMERSET, July 20.—For the first time within the memory of the present generation Somerset has a real military company and the town isn't overlooking any bet to show the boys just how greatly they are appreciated. One would imagine the company was scheduled to leave for a real war tomorrow instead of such a prosaic thing as a brigade encampment.

It is all the same to Somerset. People are coming in for miles to see the boys off. Some of the visitors are mountain girls to whom the khaki uniforms prove an irresistible attraction.

Somerset has seen brigade encampments, but it never had the opportunity before to speed its native sons to "war."

The Rockwood band is coming to Somerset this evening to serenade the soldier boys. It will remain over night and plans to escort Company C to the train tomorrow morning.

The advance detail in charge of Corporal Ed Keefer left last evening. The boys were almost mobbed at the depot. There was a big crowd to see the soldier boys off and the cheers that were sent up as the train pulled out, were heard all over town.

Is Entered.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, July 20.—A short session of court was held by Judge Van Swearingen this morning for the express purpose of hearing an equity case. The parties failed to appear and the case was continued indefinitely. It was the suit of George Kelly, for himself and also as executor of the estate of Caroline Kelly, against Wade Hensel, of Dunbar township, for the cancellation of a deed.

Hensel had made arrangements to buy a farm. A deed was prepared, but it is claimed, Hensel borrowed it for the purpose of securing a loan. After securing the loan Hensel did not return the deed but recorded it and made no payment.

An order was handed down reestablishing the independent school district of New Salem, known as the New Salem school district, which was abolished by the new school code. John H. Autrim, Dr. J. D. Cox, W. G. Kern and William Boyd were appointed School Directors.

Isaac Burford, who peddles teas and spices throughout the county and has had numerous clashes with the officials of the different coke companies, was in court again today with a case against the Taylor Coal & Coke Company of Meadville township. The court found in favor of Burford and dismissed the preliminary injunction because it was too broad in its scope.

The court stated, however, that if the company interfered with the plaintiff's rights, the injunction would be made permanent.

A libel in divorce was filed by Daisy R. Woods against Frank E. Woods. They were married April 10, 1905, in Uniontown, where they have since lived. Desertion is charged.

In the divorce case of Otis A. Evans against Lolla Evans, on motion of Attorney Leo Smith, John Zuggan was appointed master.

ed Without Dissent
Last Night.

GO AHEAD WITH BUILDING

Chairman T. J. Hooper is Directed to Appoint Committee to Have Charge of Erecting the Structure—Payment Arranged.

Despite reports circulated that there would be a serious difference of opinion among the members of the Presbyterian church over the selection of a site on the South Side for the proposed new edifice, the congregational meeting last evening, although one of the largest held in recent months, was entirely harmonious. There was not a dissenting vote from the acceptance and approval of the report of the committee, which reported that it had selected the lots of Rockwell Marietta and Mrs. J. A. Childs, at the corner of Pittsburgh and Green streets, and had, through the church trustees, arranged for the payment of it.

Following the unanimous acceptance of the report the chairman of the meeting, President Thomas J. Hooper of the Board of Trustees, was directed to appoint a building committee. Mr. Hooper stated he would not decide upon the committee for several days yet and it will probably be announced at the services on Sunday. Just what steps will be taken towards the erection of a new church cannot be determined until the building committee has an opportunity to consider the matter. It is not unlikely that architects will be requested to draw up plans for consideration at an early date, following which the contract will be awarded.

Fifth Fortunate for Frank Butts

Cleanliness may be next to Godliness, as the Bible sets forth, but Frank Butts learned today that filth has its advantages. The unsanitary conditions and appearance of Butts resulted in his immediate discharge by Burgess Evans in police court this morning. Butts was picked up by Officer Henry Geiger on the West Side last night. He was charged with being a suspicious character. Burgess Evans gave Butts 15 minutes to start towards New York, his home and contemplated destination.

Andy Wago of Blinn advanced the theory that any man who works has to drink. Andy is a coal digger and admitted being intoxicated without being ashamed of it. Andy was held until he can cut the grass and do other odd jobs about the borough building.

The committees soliciting funds expect to complete their work today. They are meeting with great success and it is expected that before evening sufficient money will have been subscribed to insure a successful celebration in every respect.

Courier Dictionary Will Help You Gain Success
And the Cost is Practically Nothing to Anyone.

Seventy-five per cent of the big business men of Connellsville declare that the chief educational need of their employees is a better knowledge of English, including spelling, grammar and punctuation and the use of words in general.

Stenographers crowd to answer an advertisement announcing a position paying $5 a week because they are not qualified to demand higher wages. Thousands of stenographers and typewriters trained in the art of making "pol-books" and tapping the typewriter keys are asking out an existence on meagre wages.

These statements have a direct bearing upon the proposition that the Daily Courier is offering a Webster's New Standard Dictionary. Illustrated practically free of charge, and give the reason for the popularity of the distribution.

Why?
Because the pursuit of the dictionary is acknowledged by educators to be the best, the quickest and the only sure way of acquiring that knowledge which the experience of the big men of Connellsville business houses proves that there is a demand for.

Get out of the $5 class.
Six coupons clipped from consecutive issues of The Daily Courier and the small expense bonus specified in the display advertisement on another page of this issue permit you to turn the tables upon what you have regarded as misfortune when it was only your own ignorance weighing upon you and the limitations of your vocabulary blinding you down.

Good authority for the statements is to be found in the Director Edward Ryerson, of the Pittsburgh High schools. When reorganizing the commercial department of High schools and inaugurating the "night school" system, he wrote to most of the representative business men of Pittsburgh, asking them to co-operate by suggestions as to what subjects of instruction should be given the greatest attention. This is what he reports:

"Of those replying, 75 per cent consider English (including spelling) essential, 68 per cent, bookkeeping, 66 per cent penmanship, 28 per cent shorthand, etc., showing that the lamentable lack of English was considered to be deserving of first attention.

Asked what defects they noticed most frequently among their employees, the great majority replied that they great majority replied that they noticed "Better training in spelling, grammar and punctuation."

What is the answer?
Webster's New Standard Dictionary Illustrated does it.

Frick Veterans Enjoy Outing;
2,000 Were at Idlewild Park.

The fifth annual picnic of the Frick Veterans Association, held at Idlewild yesterday, was better than its predecessors, and when the gatherings that have gone before are considered, this statement means something.

It was no small task to get everything working, and keep it working; but the Committee on Arrangements, with Chief Clerk Barnhart at the head, was equal to the occasion. It meant hard work, and plenty of it, but "J. A. B." was on the job every minute and the results speak for themselves.

In the neighborhood of 2,000 persons were present. Every section of the Connellsville coke region was represented. Pittsburgh sent a large delegation, the city office employees, and their friends turning out en masse.

After the gentle but insistent suggestions of the inner man had received the proper attention, along about the noon hour, and a reasonable length of time had elapsed, the first event of the day was announced, a ball game between the Superintendents and the "Vets." It was exciting while it lasted, and when the books had been balanced, it was found the "Vets" had won. James M. Atcheson, of Pittsburgh, who is a "Vet," was umpire, but it must be distinctly understood that this fact had nothing whatever to do with the result.

At the conclusion of this game, the game between Trauger and Edmore was called, and this was where everybody got busy. The spectators were pretty evenly divided, those from the southern and favoring Edmore and the north end rooting for Trauger. It was rumored that Edmore was "loaded for bear." This may or may not have been true, but if it was, somebody dampened the powder, for Trauger nosed out by a score of 5 to 4. Anyway, it was a fine game and the result was in doubt until the last man was out.

The two special trains left Idlewild about six o'clock and everyone arrived home safely and at a reasonable hour, tired, but happy.

THE MACCABEES HAVE BIG PICNIC

Gathering Was a Large One at Shady Grove Park Yesterday.

THE PROGRAM OF SPORTS

Names of Those Who Were the Winners—Members of the Order and Their Friends Were Present
From All Over the Country.

Over 1,000 people from all over Fayette county attended the annual outing of the Knights of Maccabees of Connelville and Uniontown held yesterday at Shady Grove. The knights and their families and friends began to assemble at the park as early as 9 o'clock and nearly every car during the day brought more people to the park. A number of special cars were run to and from the park in order to accommodate the crowd. The picnic was given under the auspices of the local Maccabees and the committee in charge says that nothing was left undone toward making the picnic a success. The weather was ideal. Too much credit cannot be given to the committee for the excellent manner in which every detail was carried out. The day was an ideal one and was highly enjoyed by all.

The athletic program in the afternoon was one of the great attractions of the day. The baseball game between a picked team composed of local and Uniontown Maccabees was witnessed by a large crowd. The game took place at 2:30 and ended in a victory for the local team, the score being 15 to 3. The batteries for the local team were Martin Rottler and Charles Runk, for the Uniontown team, Heddrick, Duke and Rott. The game which took place on the new race track was the next attraction. The track was just completed on Tuesday and was in good shape. The prize winners were as follows:

Men's fifty yard dash, William H. Vessel of Connelville; 100 yard dash, Lloyd Blackburn of Connelville; 100 yard dash for girls over 15 years of age, Henrietta Walker; 75 yard dash for girls desiring to participate, Henrietta Walker; 100 yard dash for young men, C. Mahoney of Uniontown; 100 yard dash for girls from 9 to 13 years, Margaret Brown of Pechin; 100 yard dash for boys over 15 years, Charles Mahoney; 100 yard dash for boys from 9 to 13 years, Ray Willoughby of Perry; prize walk, Miss Stella Murphy of the Uniontown team; and Thomas Logan of Leavenworth, Pa. In the drawing of the lucky number for $10 in gold cash, L. John of Uniontown was the lucky winner.

Five Killed In B. & O. Wreck

Five men are dead, one was slightly injured, and a seventh is unaccounted for as a result of the wreck of a fast freight train on the Pittsburgh & Western division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Bryant station yesterday evening.

The Dead.
Joseph P. O'Donnell, aged about 20, of Johnstown, Pa., killed instantly.
Charles Iverson, aged 16, of 1474 North Kimball street, Chicago, Ill.; died in West Penn hospital at 8 o'clock last night.

Matthew J. O'Neil, aged 27, married, of Uniontown, Pa., killed instantly.
John J. Cunningham, aged 12, of Connelville, Pa., conductor of freight train, both legs crushed, necessitating amputation, died in West Penn hospital.

Raymond Dallas, aged 17, of 2011 Spring alley, was in fractured condition at the head, taken to Allegheny general hospital.
As the train of about 30 cars, all filled with bar iron, approached a sharp curve at Bryant station, a wheel on one of the forward cars broke. About 19 of the cars were reduced to kindling, and the tracks were torn up more than 200 feet. The iron loaded in the wrecked cars was piled on both tracks, blocking traffic.

Cunningham, O'Donnell, O'Neil, Iverson, Manning and Dallas were hurled into the wreckage. O'Donnell being killed almost instantly, while the others, with the exception of Dallas, were partly buried under the pile of iron bars.

All the men except Cunningham were being their way on the train and were not employed on the railroad. Cunningham had been employed on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for 20 years and had been a conductor for about 10 years. He resided on East Fairview avenue and is survived by his widow and two children, who left last night for Pittsburgh. Mr. Cunningham was a member of the Moose lodge.

DESCRIPTION OF WEBSTER'S

New Standard Dictionary ILLUSTRATED. WITH NEW U. S. CENSUS

This most convenient and latest of all Dictionaries is based on Noah Webster's Dictionary, revised and brought up to date by the most recent eminent American and English authorities, designed to meet every demand of a modern and reliable Dictionary.

It includes all words in the English Language that do not properly belong to a Dictionary of Technical Terms. In fact, its recent publication and careful revision, enable it to define and treat a large number of words of recent coinage that cannot be found in any other Dictionary, no matter how cumbersome and pretentious.

Surprising results are obtained in looking up the spelling, pronunciation and definition of a host of words which have been incorporated into our language only yesterday, as it were. Take, for instance, Aero, Aeroplanist, Aviation, Aviator, Biplane, etc., introduced as a result of recent aeronautical activity—also such new words as: Brainstorm, Blithen, Cordite, Donatured, Dunlute, Joy Ride, etc.—also Okapi, an animal allied to the Giraffe, and brought into prominence through ex-President Roosevelt's explorations in Africa—also Hookworm, Lettergram, Nickelodeon, Stovaine, Hangar, Equilibrator, etc. Thus the evidences of painstaking revision are found on every hand.

Fred, the eleven year old brother of Ray Quier, who was put in the lockup on Wednesday for assaulting Joseph Watson, was in a bad plot of whiskey, coal oil and shoe hammer in the window Quier worked diligently for about two hours from 2 until 4 o'clock. Quier's mother told him to stop the lockup thought they heard a noise and as Andy Lutz was going to work about 4 o'clock, he told him to stop. He took around and saw if anyone was trying to get out. Lutz could see nothing from the outside but on looking in the window saw that Quier was almost out. The officers were sent for and the kid first said his father sent the oil and hammer. Later he said his mother sent the things. At the hearing Quier pled guilty to assault and battery, highway robbery and jail breaking. He was taken to Greensburg by Constable Nuckett.

THURSDAY EVE'G., JULY 20, 1911.

CATECHISING
THE CANDIDATES.

William Jennings Bryan has again assumed sole control and private ownership of the Democratic party. He has not yet announced his candidacy for the Presidency, possibly because of a foolish promise to stand aside this year, but if he is not the standard-bearer of the party himself he evidently proposes to have taught to bear the banner and the brunt of a losing battle. We read in the dispatches that he has undertaken to cross-examine all ambitious candidates with a view to determining for and in behalf of the Democratic National Convention whether the particular candidate will do.

The Democratic organs die in our ears their protests against "the hoarseness of Senator Penrose, but no political party was ever more thoroughly dominated and dictated to, controlled and boss ridden, than the Democratic party is by Dollar Bill.

There are numerous ambitions for the Democratic nomination for President, doubtless caused by the accidental election of a Democratic House, but our prediction is that if there is any reasonable hope of success there will be no harmony on Harmon and Wood Wilson be lost in the woods of oblivion.

The Old Man of the Platte is still riding on the tired shoulders of the troubled Democracy. His catechism of the candidates will in all probability develop some serious objections to their availability and in the end he will tell it a public duty to accept the Democratic nomination once more and for the last time, that is provided his party calls not again.

THE BLUFFERS AND PIKERS OF FAYETTE JOURNALISM.

With characteristic impudent indifference, the Uniontown Herald publishes a poker story taken from a Washington paper with the comment that, "Were it not for the fact that The Herald circulates extensively in Conneltsville we would not take the trouble to publish the matter."

According to the most reliable information extant, a poker story is a matter of much more public interest in Uniontown than it could possibly be in Conneltsville. The Hix Water Mark of Fayette county Journalism just can't help being deceitful. It's editorial on "Bluffers and Pikers" has no application in Mud Island. It belongs nearer home. Uniontown has a national reputation as a Poker Center.

Perhaps this is the reason there are so many Bluffers and Pikers there. Being on the Pike they cannot help being Pikers, and being a constantly familiar with the game of Poker they are natural born Bluffers.

But it pains us to observe that even some of the editors up that way are Bluffers. The Hix Water Mark talks of its extensive circulation in Conneltsville. If The Courier doesn't circulate more extensively in Uniontown than the Herald does in Conneltsville we will engage to eat the next bundle of Herald that comes this way.

The Herald hasn't any circulation in Conneltsville and not much any place else. The Courier is the earliest of Fayette county Journalism, and it isn't afraid to print the figures for it.

THE DECADENT AND DEGENERATE DEMOCRACY.

The Pennsylvania Democratic politicians had a regular old-fashioned row in Harrisburg yesterday. They split themselves in half, formed two separate and distinct State Committees and elected a State Chairman. They will do their campaign in Conneltsville. The Republicans have become a minor issue. It is hard to understand what the Democrats are fighting for. They have small hopes of success when united and none at all when divided and discordant.

The proceedings yesterday indicate that the Pennsylvania Democrats are hopelessly divided largely through the sinister influences of the Poorless Prophet of the Platte. To wreak his vengeance upon Colonel James Madison Guffy he would break to splinters and reduce to toothpicks the Democratic organization that twice since the Civil War elected a Democratic Governor and which for a number of years was represented in the United States Senate by a Wallace and in the House by Speaker Wallace. Free Silver and Free Trade have shackled the feet and bound the limbs of a once active and successful political party, and today its inert and paralyzed personality, not content with mummbling and mouthing its ghastly theories to a disgusted public, is beating its own breast with insensate fury Upon the door of the Democratic State Convention should be inscribed the legend popularly supposed to illumine with sad intelligence the portals of Hell, "Abandon all hope, ye who enter here."

Notwithstanding the perennial denunciations of the virtuous Opposition of the Republican party because of its alleged venality, we are confronted by the spectacle of a many-headed and much-tailed Democratic organization, whose State Committee is unashamedly stuffed with state votes, whose organization is divided, whose government is corrupt, whose leaders are selfish and unscrupulous, whose purpose is power alone, and whose principles are as changeable as the colors of the chameleon; and this is the party which asks the people to entrust it with the government of the nation!

The people may not be satisfied with all things done under Republican administration, but they will hesitate long and wait much before they will try degenerate Democratic rule.

The Brownsville hospital is coming along. It asked for a State appropriation this year, but the request was premature, there being no substance to the proposition. The substance is now being furnished and the establishment of a proper hospital is well assured. Brownsville needs a hospital. It is fast becoming the center of a considerable coal and coke business, which business is destined to grow.

Scottsdale has band concerts, too.

It is difficult to understand why baseball fans want professional games when they can be entertained with much interesting though perhaps not very instructive games as that played in Conneltsville yesterday.

Oblopy is promised Parolan capital for its development. If the French capital is as lively as the French women and as ample as their hair, it ought to set Oblopy ahead some.

Frank Smith is now reported to be a Cave Dweller. If so he has nothing on his Antediluvian Pursuit.

The Frick Veterans nearly stopped the coke region yesterday, but they had a lovely time.

The Third Class City Celebration has gotten the right sort of a suit on.

Bricks have their proper uses, but as weapons of offense against a representative of the law they are distinctly undesirable. They have a habit of coming back in other forms, chiefly forms of law.

No education is complete without a dictionary. The Courier places it within the means of every ordinary person to get a good dictionary at nominal cost. Come in! It's free.

The Plenic Season is on without the air or consent of the Weather Works.

The Socialists expect to rule the forthcoming borough of South Conneltsville, when it comes. The fact is rather reason why it should not come.

Janitors' Convention.

By Isaac of Yukon.

YUKON, July 19.—The First Annual Janitors' Convention, Pennsylvania, was held in the Syrian Peddlers' Temple the first two days of this week. All the janitors arrived Saturday in order to get a nip of our genuine Westinghouse Airbrake hospitality over Sunday. They wanted to get on to our ways and our landings especially while the nights are warm and light future.

When the convention was called to order and the president was presiding, it was found that all the members were school house janitors except five and they were morose janitors. They declared that fraud and money had been used to pack the convention for educational purposes and after lifting several of our approved copyrighted cocktails they left town.

Stenwindeer Jones of Dixon was elected Chairman and High Triumph Hennessy of Huntington was elected Secretary. Both of the men were voted a salary of $7 per day actual work and twenty cents a mile circular.

Hallux Gray talked half an hour on the subject "Working the Board." He said that all boards felt kindly to their janitors and that they would be willing to raise janitors' every two months if the taxpayers did not kick. He said the best thing to do is to "honey" the taxpayers by telling them that janitoring is a highly hard work and that a heater or boiler is liable to blow up any day and leave a janitor's family orphans and in some cases widows. He said if the people could only realize how near death's door a janitor is while doing his duty they would elect directors to lead him.

Blenheim Smith of Lathrop spoke on the subject: "How to Make an Even Hundred." In the course of the speaker's twitter, he said that according to the wages paid doctors and lawyers an even hundred a month was not too much to start the song of life and that any good janitor who works for a cent less than a hundred a month is untrue to the thirty-second degree of the order. He said if a janitor is receiving only sixty or ninety per month, he should go to the board and tell the good members that a princely janitor three days in approved and technical janitorship is worth the even hundred, and if he sings a good, deep song, he'll get what he is making.

The committee on resolutions reported at the close of the first day as follows:

"RESOLVED, That the average school teacher gets about half as much money as we do and that we are not permitted to enter the same stratum of society as they do; therefore,

"RESOLVED, That we ask ourselves with alarm where this thing is going to stop.

"RESOLVED, That we send a committee to lobby at Harrisburg with a reasonable amount of coin to have legislation passed which will cut down the janitor's hours of work and make his job really non-bounceable.

"RESOLVED, That we stand together and keep tub on our professor in order that ambitious and competing females do not step in and take our jobs at $90 per month."

"This convention do now adjourn until tomorrow at ten of the clock," were the Chairman's last words.

Dr. Weddell Able to Resume Practice—Postal Savings Bank Opens on Monday.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, July 20.—The funeral of J. E. Brookman, who died at his home on Homestead avenue, yesterday, from diabetes, will take place from the Lutheran church on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Brookman, formerly of Cumberland, Md., who have been well known residents of Scottdale for years. The deceased was married and leaves a wife and children. He was a prominent young mill worker, and was a leading member of the Scottdale Volunteer Fire Department, and is the first active member of that body to pass away. The fire department will attend the funeral in a body, appearing for the first time in their new black uniforms. The pall bearers will be selected from the firemen's drum corps. The funeral on Sunday afternoon will be a very large one and is the first of its kind ever to be held in Scottdale. The interment will be in the Scottdale cemetery.

Dr. Weddell Out.
Dr. E. P. Weddell is so far recovered from his recent attack of sciatic rheumatism that he has been able to resume his office practice and within a few days hopes to be able to attend calls anywhere.

Travelling in Canada.
Mr. and Mrs. Richard Watson are away on an extended trip to Buffalo, Detroit and Cleveland with a trip through Canada before they return home.

To Open Bank.
Carpenters have been around the postoffice and have arranged the Postal Savings bank department, which opens in the local office next Monday. The upper panel in the door of Postmaster H. C. Fretts' room in the front of the office has been removed and a grill work put in, with a shelf counter in front of the window, where the depositors to the savings fund may come. At the back of the room over a radiator is built a desk shelf. The neat little room will be quite fitting for the savings department and is adjoining the money order department, and right in the front of the office, where it will attract attention.

Miss Sally Monroe will be given charge of the banking department, and a postoffice inspector will be here Monday to start the bank in operation. Postmasters throughout this section until this time have had to go to DuBois to learn the workings of the plan.

The First National Bank has been selected by the Government to be the depository for the funds that are banked at the postoffice. Pamphlets explaining the plan in detail are being handed out to all who desire to become acquainted with the savings plan.

The Hixson Reunion.

A Cleanup of Sidewalks Made By the Merchants of Meyersdale.

Special to The Courier.
MEYERSDALE, Pa., July 20.—There was a rapid disappearance of green goods, store boxes, signs and other like objects that had for years been projected upon the sidewalks by merchants of Center street to the exceeding inconvenience of the pedestrians especially on Saturday evenings, when travel is just a little bit out of the ordinary. The grand cleanup was precipitated by one of the fruit dealers erecting a sign on the sidewalk between his place of business and that of his neighbor, to the apparent detriment of the latter's business. The result was that the police officers were instructed to enforce the ordinance which forbids the placing of wares, signs and the like out on the sidewalk. All of the merchants promptly complied with the order except the one referred to as having caused the trouble, and, of course, if he refused to comply within a reasonable time steps will be taken to compel him to do so.

No one, except he who is familiar with Center street, can imagine what a great difference it made in the appearance of that thoroughfare, for now one can see and walk the entire length of the street without having his vision obstructed and being compelled to thread his way around and among boxes, boxes and barrels, as was the case heretofore.

Youth Attempts a Jail Delivery

MT. PLEASANT, July 20.—One of the boldest attempts of jail breaking recorded in the history of the town was made Tuesday night by Ray young Queer who is said to have locked up by the borough officers charged with the assault and robbery of Jerome Warden, of this place. Warden is an aged resident of town and was brutally beaten, it is alleged, by young Queer, who is said to have used a pair of steel knuckles. Realizing the steps the law would probably take in the case, Queer was handed a hammer and cold chisel through the bars of an open window. With these tools he steadily worked at the walls of the jail, removing one brick after another until but one of the four layers remained as a barrier to his freedom. Hearing the dull thud within the walls of the prison during the night, E. E. Berger arose from his bed at 4 A. M. and investigated. He at once perceived what the prisoner was about to do and hastened to the home of Officer Andrew Stelf. The prisoner was forced to leave off his work at the point of a pistol.

Brownsville Hospital Work to Start With Fund of Thirty Thousand.

The Brownsville hospital association, according to information received from a well known resident of that place, has in the neighborhood of $20,000 with which to start work on its new institution. This does not include the $10,000 appropriated by the State, which boosts the total to about $30,000.

The executive committee of the association has issued a call for fifty per cent of the donations solicited from private individuals and corporations and it is announced that a liberal response is being made to the call.

One of the largest donations came from the Jones & Laughlin Co., of Pittsburg, which operates great mines at Coal Center and at Frederickstown, Charles Storey, one of Brownsville's hustlers, visited the Jones & Laughlin people in Pittsburg and a $1,000 donation was the result of this visit. The new hospital will be located with-

Picks Phillies to Win Pennant

Attorney L. C. Hiebo, who is a close student of baseball as well as Blackstone and many other subjects, picks the Phillies as having as good a chance to win the National league pennant as any other team.
"I said early in the season that New York would win the pennant and that Philadelphia would be in the fight. Right now it seems that the Phillies have about as good a chance to win the flag as any team in the league," he said last evening. "Philadelphia and St. Louis can both be counted as strong contenders. Bresnahan has the Cardinals playing steady, consistent baseball, and has imbued a fighting spirit into his players that will win many games."
"Pittsburg is not in the running. I said so early in the season, but the brethren who are Pirate enthusiasts laughed at me. Wonder what they think now."

THEATER SEATS.

Very Annoying Indeed It Was Before They Were Numbered.

People who nowadays book their seats beforehand for the play cannot conceive of the discomfort of other days, an instance of which is given by John Fyvie in "Comedy Queens of the Georgian Era."

"One of Charles Matthews' newspaper cuttings," he says, "contains a letter from a disgraced playgoer dated January, 1770, protesting against the custom of 'permitting a footman to sit for an act or two of a play next to a woman of the first quality by way of securing a place for his absent master.'"

"The indecency of the practice is said to be aggravated by the usual choice of the dirtiest servant of the family for this duty, 'for the men of parade and figure are to prance before the lady's chair with lighted flambeaux or hang like a rope of onions behind her coach.'"

"As a remedy for this nuisance the writer of this letter made the revolutionary suggestion that the sittings in the boxes should be numbered, a plan which does not seem to have occurred to any one previously and which was not adopted till long afterward."

Pioneer Steel Workers at the Old Cambria Mills Still in Harness.

Pioneer steel makers and steel workers in Western Pennsylvania, and especially in the immediate Pittsburgh district, out along the Monongahela valley, where the Bessemer steel process had its early working in the manufacture of steel rails, replacing the old iron rail 35 or 40 years ago, have had recalled to their mind the past week or two an important anniversary in the steel rail business. The anniversary is to be celebrated when the "dog days" come; and the torrid heat gives way to the cooling breezes of autumn.

The anniversary was the fortieth of the rolling of the first steel rail in the great Western Pennsylvania district. It is not in the State, which practically was the pioneer in the manufacture of the steel rail. The Cambria Iron Company takes the precedence in the Western Pennsylvania steel mills in the rolling of the first steel rail, as it did in the manufacture of the old iron rail, used for the first time in this country on the old Erie road. The first steel rail rolled, therefore, was that made in the old Cambria Iron Company's plant on July 10, 1871, 40 years ago last Monday week.

The honor of rolling the first steel rail from Bessemer steel, invented by Sir Henry Bessemer, the famous English metallurgist, and somewhat improved upon in later years by American chemists and metallurgists, is practically held by men who have been for years prominent in the steel industry in the immediate Pittsburgh district the majority of whom, in fact, have their homes in Pittsburgh, Braddock or Homestead. Braddock possesses the larger number of the old employees, however, who were at the Cambria Iron Company's mills when the first Bessemer steel rail was rolled. Braddock, likewise, until the past two or three years, also held the most prominence in steel rail manufacture in the world, through its connection with the original Johnstown men employed at the Cambria plant, who went to the old Edgar Thomson Steel works when that great steel rail plant was begun in 1874, and started in 1875, with the projector, the late Captain William R. Jones, the first partner of Andrew Carnegie in steel making, who was later general manager of the Edgar Thomson Steel mills and the first Bessemer steel plant in this country, and at the same time general manager of the later acquired Homestead Steel works from the Park Works.

Griffith S. Davies of Braddock, a pioneer in the old days of iron manufacture at the Cambria plant, was one of the first men employed at the Cambria Iron works when the plant was started over a half century ago. Mr. Davies was the heater at the Cambria plant to whom credit should be given for heating the first "heat" for the rolling of the first rails for railroads rolled by the Bessemer process. Captain "Dob" Hunt, a resident of Chicago, prominent for years in the Middlewest manufacturing and financial circles, one of the best known metallurgists in the country, was the general manager for years at the Cambria plant, and under his management the trial was made of the Bessemer steel for rails, as a departure from the old iron rails.

Mr. Davies recalled the early days of steel making, and the anniversary, a fortnight or more ago, and at once wrote Captain Hunt suggesting that the anniversary be observed by the oldtimers with a reunion of all who are living and had to do with bringing the supremacy of the steel rail to the fore by the replacing of the iron rail. Captain Hunt wrote in reply that nothing would please him better than to meet the "old guard" who worked with him in 1871, but suggested that the anniversary be recalled at a time when the country was not sweating and broiling under a torrid sun of from 93 to 95 degrees Fahrenheit. Captain Hunt suggested that the observance in the form of the reunion take place in the middle of September, or the first week in October, and with this suggestion, which was accepted by Mr. Davies he began looking up the records of his colleagues and preparing the preliminary work for the reunion, which is to take place in September.

Captain Hunt suggested that the reunion could be held either in Johnstown, the scene of the early triumphs of steel rail making, or in Braddock, the home of the present and for a number of years past of the majority of the men who aided in rolling the first rail, or possibly in one of the hotels in Pittsburgh, the rightful center of the steel rail industry of the world. The place of holding the reunion will be decided upon at a later day. Captain Hunt stated definitely that he would be present at the reunion any time that the day might be fixed, outside of torrid weather.

The Steelton Iron Works at Steelton, Pa., a short distance east of Harrisburg, had produced Bessemer steel as a test product several months before the Bessemer steel manufactured at the Cambria Iron Company's plant; but to prevent confusion or complication of honors or claims between the two plants it must be stated that on July 10, 1871, the first steel rail rolled from Bessemer steel manufactured at the Cambria Iron Company's plant was rolled on that day, although an important test had been made of Bessemer steel manufactured by the Steelton Iron Works some time before, by the Cambria Iron Company. The statement as first made, however, rests that the fortieth anniversary of steel rail making occurred last Monday and the first perfect Bessemer steel rail was made on that day from steel converted in its own iron cupolas.

Captain Jones went from Catawqua to Johnstown and was there when the first steel rails were rolled. In 1874 he went to Braddock and took with him probably the most skilled men of all at the Cambria Iron Company's plant, and this fact has been recognized in the steel world the past 37 years. There are five of the original oldtimers of 40 years ago still at the present Cambria Steel Company's enormous plant, while there are some 24 or more at Braddock who were at Johnstown 40 years ago, a half dozen in Pittsburgh with a like number at Homestead and a score scattered to 20 States, where, at Cambria on the first anniversary are named.

Some of the men noted in the steel world of the Pittsburgh district were among the number enumerated, and these will all be at the reunion in September, unless death intervenes. It will be the most notable reunion in the steel world of actual steelmakers that has taken place in a half century for it will include the men who have theoretically and practically made the Pittsburgh steel district and likewise built the steel trade of the Union.

HURTS COAL PROPERTY.

Drilling of Oil Wells at Lone Pine Causing Damage.

It is reported from Lone Pine, in Washington county, that millions of dollars worth of coal property in that section is being rendered valueless by the drilling of numerous gas wells very close together. More than 100 wells have been located there within a very small section of land, many of them being not more than 50 feet apart. The same report says that J. V. Thompson and other holders of much coal acreage are unable to estimate damage being sustained by them as a result of the drilling and casing of these wells. While it is believed that mining engineers will find it practically impossible to stake out entries for future coal mines without interfering with the casing of these wells, this is true only because the wells are in such close proximity.

There is no question that the drilling in the Lone Pine field will seriously interfere with the mining of the coal whenever that territory is opened up, and this in causing much objection on the part of coal owners. It seems that they will be unable even to check the drilling operations of the several companies, as a number of suits brought by coal owners under similar conditions elsewhere have resulted in favor of the drillers. In the Fayette county courts recently rules were laid down for the drilling of wells for oil or gas in territory where the coal is developed. The court made stringent rules to be observed but they were intended largely to prevent the escape of gas from old wells into the mine, or the leakage of water which would open the way for gas into the mine workings. In the Lone Pine field the coal owners are unable to plead the necessity for safeguarding the lives of miners and legal phases of the matter must rest on the difficult problem of how much damage the gas men are doing to the coal mine.

The largest holders and those who are being affected most are Thompson, N. L. Evans, Mrs. Pernella Shortz and the Iams estate while the drillers are preparing to put down wells on the property owned by Joseph Huffman, James Kuntz, Hugh and F. M. Curry, A. C. Watson and Isaac Seaman.

Some of the largest gas producing wells in the country are located there and every well being drilled seems to be stronger than the last. Every gas producing company is represented and Lone Pine is flooded with agents who are ready to lease any tract at any moment, but everything seems to have been taken up and the only thing there is the excitement of new wells that are being constantly struck.

There is a great rush to secure leases near Lone Pine but all the field is now practically taken up and many wells have been drilled. These wells run far below the coal but the casings are very close together. In driving entries it is believed that the machines would surely come in contact with the casings.

MYSTERY SOLVED.

Key to Stonehenge Problem Said to Have Been Found.

The mystery of Stonehenge, the earliest vestige of English civilization, the hitherto unexplained riddle which has for hundreds of years perplexed the most learned savants, is believed to have been unraveled by Professor Richard Norton of Harvard, according to reports which have reached this country from Cyprus.

Professor Norton is the son of the late Professor Charles Eliot Norton and has already won renown by a series of brilliant archaeological discoveries, especially in Asia. He has just reached the ancient school of classical studies at Rome, arriving on the Armour yacht Umana, and will soon announce the most valuable discoveries made by the American archaeological expedition in the excavation of the Greek city of Cyrene, which was founded 631 B. C. The connection between discoveries at Cyrene and the hitherto impenetrable mystery of Stonehenge is said to lie in the similarity of the megalithic or great stone columns common to each.

WATERSPOUTS.

Old Time Mariners Fought Them With Noise and Cannon.

In the waterspout the medieval mariner saw a malevolent living monster—a sea dragon. There were various means of combating them. Once all sailors carried black handled knives, which the monster was believed to hold in special abhorrence.

When a spot made its appearance these knives were produced and pointed in its direction, waved in the air so as to make the sign of the cross, or, according to the recommendation of certain contemporary authorities, driven several times into the side of the ship. Certain passages from the gospel of St. John were recited as charms against waterspouts.

A loud noise of any kind was also believed to be efficacious against them—shouts, the clash of swords, the beating of drums and gongs, etc. The custom of firing cannon against waterspouts, says the Scientific American, dates back at least as far as the sixteenth century. The original idea appears to have been to frighten them away by the noise of the report, but in the later times it was believed that the waterspout could be cut in twain by the cannon ball and the spot thus dissipated. It would be interesting to know whether the commanding of waterspouts is still sometimes practiced. It was certainly common much less than a century ago. It is hardly necessary to say that it is entirely futile.

Democrats Elect Rival Chairmen At the Harrisburg Convention.

HARRISBURG, July 20.—Whether Walter E. Ritter of Williamsport or George W. Guthrie of Pittsburgh be the actual chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee will probably be for the courts to determine. Each gentleman was yesterday "elected" to that office by a faction of the Pennsylvania Democracy.

The regulars chose Ritter at a meeting in the Chestnut Street Auditorium, at which 41 votes were cast by persons claiming to be members of the State Committee or authorized substitutes therefor. The election of Guthrie was accomplished at a meeting of the re-organization branch of the party in the Board of Trade building, where 55 persons answered to the roll.

Thus, although the most liberal construction of the party rules gives a total of but 34 members of the State Central Committee, the two meetings aggregated 97 votes. Each side charges the other with having padded its roll. Legally, however, this makes no difference, for the rules say that a quorum shall consist of any number of members attending in response to a regular call, and the fight will therefore hinge on the question of which meeting was regular under the rules. It is understood that the "old guard" is preparing to go into court with a request for an injunction to restrain the reorganizers from using the name of the Democratic State Central Committee, on the ground that George W. Guthrie was not the legally elected State chairman at the time he issued the call for yesterday's meeting of the reorganization forces. The case will probably hinge on the question whether the State Committee on March 2 had a right to delegate to a committee of seven the power to select a

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WATERS

Copyright, 1911, by Louis Joseph Vance

Heardly Coast turned into the area, and rang the basement bell.

After some time the door was opened to him and he entered, to have his hand caught and fawned upon by the aged butler who had smuggled him sweets when Coast was in the prison and pomp of his first knickerbockers had come to stay with Katherine in her nursery.

"Oh, Mr. Garrett, Mr. Garrett!" the butler said. "God bless the day, sir! I've seen the papers and said that you'd be here, sir, as soon as ever you got back home. I knew I would turn out so, sir, from the first: I've never failed to stand up for you and say you never done it."

But a black shame it is justice was so long in coming—

Scamper rambled on, garrulous in semi-senile joy. Coast leaned wearily against the wall of the gloomy basement hallway, with no heart to interrupt. At length, however, he found his voice.

"Thank you, Scamper," he said, gently. "But—Miss Katherine?"

The answer he had foreseen, hopefully. "Come, sir—come this way, a day."

"You know what happened, sir?"

"I can guess. But tell me." He stole himself against the disclosure of what he already knew with intuitive certainty.

"Mrs. Graham died—you know that, sir?" Scamper named Katherine's aunt, with whom she had lived after her parents' death.

"During my trial—yes, I know."

"She never believed you guilty, sir. Perhaps you'd like to know—"

"But Miss Katherine?"

"The old man shook his head mournfully. 'Mad, sir, mad,' he murmured."

Coast caught his wrist fiercely. "What's that you say?"

"I say she was mad, sir, to do what she did, and that I'll say though it cost me my place. It wasn't a decent three months after Mrs. Graham passed away, sir—you'd been sent away barely a month—when she married him—"

"Blackstock?"

"Yes, sir. . . . She didn't know what she was doing, sir. I've thought it was what I've heard called infatuation. She didn't know her own mind when she was talking to her. He carried her clean off her feet, so to speak. . . . So they were married and went away."

"To Germany, I understood, sir."

"You've heard—"

"Never a word—not a line. I sometimes wonder at it, sir. She left me a bit of money to run things on till she returned, but that's gone long ago, sir, and I've had to draw upon my savings. . . . She must know."

Blindly Coast turned and reeled into the servants' dining-room, where he fell into a chair by the table, pillow his head upon his arms.

A passion of blind, dumb rage shook him by the throat; blackness of despair succeeded that; he sat motionless, witless, overwhelmed.

An hour or two passed before the butler aroused him with an offer of biscuits and a decanter of rare old port; all the house had, he protested, fit to offer to his Mr. Garrett.

Coast ate and drank mechanically, without sense of taste or refreshment. Even the generous wine lay cold within him.

Still later he asked for writing materials and scrawled a few lines to Warburton, briefly requesting him to look after Scamper and advance him money from time to time, according to his needs, pending the return of his mistress.

Then, rising, he stumbled forth into the night, at once unconscious and heedless of whether his feet were leading him, walking far and blindly under the sway of a physical instinct dumbly demanding of him action and exertion.

Midnight found him on a hilltop far beyond the city limits, insensibly comforted by the great calm of the tract.

"He Carried Her Clean Off Her Feet, So to Speak."

quill countryside, blanketed with kindly darkness, lighted only by the arching stars. There was a wind of freedom in his face, sweet with the freedom of the sea. Before him there was only the mystery of chance, the grateful oblivion of the open spaces; behind him a lurid sky, overhanging the city of his renunciation. Without a thought of choice, he trudged onward into the unknown.

So, plodding, the night enfolding him to her great bosom, warm with peace.

CHAPTER IV.

To the boatyard and ship-chandler in the town of Fairhaven, on the eastern bank of the Acquabon river, there came, or, rather, drifted with the tide of a casual fancy toward the close of a day in June, Garrett Coast.

A declining sun threw his shadow athwart the floor of the chandlery. Huxtable glanced up from the middle of papers on his desk. Coast came easily in the doorway, with one shoulder against the frame; a man notably tall and slender and graced, besides, with a simple dignity of manner that asserted oddly, in the Huxtable understanding, with clothing well-worn and travel-stained. Out of a face moderately browned, his dark eyes glimmered with a humor whimsical, regarding Huxtable.

The object of their regard pushed up his spectacles for a better view. "Well?" he inquired, not without a suspicion of grim resentment, who was not weathered to laughter at his own expense.

It happened, however, that Coast's amusement sprang from another cause; his own utter irresponsibility, which alone had led him to the chandlery, he considered hugely diverting. "I was just thinking," he said, smiling, "that now would be a useful time to buy a boat."

Huxtable, possessed of an inherent predilection for tactfulness, liable, ever and anon, to be sore beset if not wholly put to rout by the demon Coarseness (a familiar likewise legitimately handed down to him by several generations of New England forebears), with a mute nod to signify that he had heard and now awaited without prejudice a more explicit declaration.

"A boat," Coast added, "preferably of the center-board cat type, with a hard-working motor auxiliary."

The Huxtable mused, which you are to believe typical of his caste, like a ship wisely navigated, moved cautiously in well-buoyed channels. It clung to tradition, whether in the business of boat building, which it pursued to admiration, or in the lighter diversion of humor, to which its attitude resembled that of the ancestor worshipping Southern Chinese. Preliminary symptoms of a reversion to type in the matter of wit were betrayed by the corrugation of the Huxtable wrinkles.

"To go afloat, sir?"

"After this utterance, tradition flapped its wings and screamed; Huxtable himself concurred; to chide; Coast, to a tolerant smile.

"Possibly," he conceded. "Have you such a boat?"

"I might have," Huxtable admitted cautiously. "Come along." He rose and led the way through a back door into the boat yard.

With a twist of his eyebrows apologetic doubt, Coast followed. He was not wholly satisfied that there was any wisdom latent in this latest freak of his errand. For a fortnight he had given impulse to his head, and so, docile to its aimless divagations, had found contentment of a sort—more a parody than the real thing; dreamless rest won through wholesome bodily fatigue, a waking distraction brood of constant change of scene; then, ice over the troubled depths of a heart embittered. Eastward from New York he had wandered, mostly aloof, unknown, unrecognized, Warburton alone cognizant of his movements, and that under strict injunction of silence; thus he had come blindly, seeking succor of his distemper, finding only the oblivion of fatigue. And recently he had become unusually conscious that even that was losing its effect, as an opiate will in a frame too long habituated to its action; now and again the thought of Katherine and Blackstock would crawl in his mind, vigorous, poisoning the very sunlight.

Now, without preface, he found his whim aiming for salt water. Was he wise to humor it? Would he find healing in the swing of the sea, the savor of spray, the hiss of waters broken by plunging bows, the gurgling astern?

Huxtable led him directly to a little vessel in a cradle on the ways and bright with new paint. "The Echo," he introduced him: "Five year old, weather-wise, sound and sweet, fast and able. Owner left her with me for sale. Seven hundred and a bargain."

Coast strolled round the boat with an eye critical of her lines, then clambered up the skeleton ribs of the cradle and dropping into her cockpit, verifying Huxtable's catalogue of attributes. Presently he climbed down again, impressed that the boat would probably justify its recommendation to the latter.

"When can you put her in the water?"

"In fifteen minutes."

"Do so, then, please, and have the gasoline tanks filled and the batteries wired up. . . . I'll wait these boatsides." He found a pencil and scrap of paper and scribbled a list of supplies. . . . "You've a spare mooring off here?" he inquired, and received an affirmative. "Then put her off; I'll sleep aboard her tonight. Now I'll take a turn up town and buy provisions and things."

He fitted out without thought of economy; in the list of his acquisitions he could find no lack; by nightfall the Echo was furnished with everything that Coast could think of as essential or desirable for coastwise cruises, whether brief or protracted.

There was no plausible excuse for his falling to sleep; the Echo rode without much perceptible motion, moored about a hundred yards off shore; waters whispered, somnolently alongside; the town was quiet. Yet slumber was denied him; an unwelcome excitement sparked his imagination, kindled by a sense of adventure distilled from tomorrow's promise.

At five bells he rose and went on deck to smoke, his trouble heavy upon him. The cockpit was not more drenched with moonlight than with dew, but the air was motionless and snore; in pyjamas and slippers, leaning upon the dry side of an overturned sent cushion, he felt no need of heavier clothing.

Presently a breath of air stirred feebly; catpaws darkened the silver; sighing, the air died; the faded surface of the harbor smoothed and brightened. Then again the breeze fanned up out of the northwest, vigilant; advancing, languishing, waxing gradually in volume until it blew full and free.

Coast struggled to the chill and rose to go below, but paused, attracted by a stir of life aboard a small, two-masted schooner that had been riding idly at anchor between two and three hundred feet away toward the ship-channel.

He saw a movement of bustling men upon her deck. Her sailing lights appeared; a green starboard eye glared at him fixedly. The mainsail was hoisted, the foremast went up. Then, falling off broadside to the oblique current, the vessel shaped her course handsly for the harbor-mouth, booming crashing to port as the red eye swung to bear on Coast. As she drew abreast he could see her deck quite clearly, glimmering in the white glare that threw the scurrying figures of the crew into clear black relief. They went about their tasks adroitly, sure-footed and alert, with a curious detachment of attitude, having no regard whatever, apparently, for that which held Coast spell-bound.

In the waist two men were struggling, locked in one another's arms and staggering, now this way, now that, neither uttering a sound. They fought strongly, each with a passionate concentration of effort, each in silence.

He saw one suddenly give way, as though his foot had slipped. He went down upon a knee, the weight of his antagonist heavy upon him, and recovered only with a tremendous and convulsive effort, but now with his hold broken and at the other's mercy, in half a dozen breaths he was rushed to the rail (where he attempted futile-ly to last stand), forced backward over it and so held. A fist was lifted above him and fell like a hammer. There followed a splash, but no outcry. The man went under like a log. The schooner slipped onward with growing impetus, sails bellying luminous. No life preserver was thrown, not a hand raised, not so far as Coast could discern, a hand turned to see the fate of the defeated.

Loosening the drawstring of his pyjamas and ripping off the jacket, Coast leaped to the Echo's stern, poised himself lithely and shot out, cleaving the water almost without a splash.

Warmth came of exertion; refreshed, invigorated, he swam with swiftness and strength, concerned only to reach his goal before the man could sink finally. At length winning to his side, he held off warily, watching for a chance to close in and at the same time escape the clutch of those valiantly thrashing arms.

"Now, now!" he cried, as one might strive to soothe a restive horse. "Easy, there! You're only tiring yourself out."

The splashing ceased in some measure, the man wiggling awkwardly slam between the eyes already. Come along and be a hero, why don't you?"

Coast chuckled as he ranged alongside. "Put one hand on my right shoulder," he advised, "and keep as still as possible. I'll do the swimming."

"You're the doctor." The man followed his instructions promptly. "Sorry to trouble you, though."

"That's all right."

"It's these infernal clothes. I can swim without them. Every try to disrobe on the bed of the sea."

After a time, in a reflective tone, "We for the Demon Run after this," came over his shoulder. "I never knew water could taste so vile."

Coast made no reply, apparently none was expected. Laboriously gaining to the side of the catboat, he clung to it, panting, while the other consistently transferred his hold. Huxtable, so, he rolled an inquiring eye to his benefactor.

"This occasion," he observed, "is quite too unique. Never have I met a man I liked so well, under similar auspices. Permit me: my name is Appleyard, Christian name from the Old Testament Melchisedec—kindness of sponsors in baptism. Please don't look like that! I regret it, likewise."

He paused, watching Coast gravely, "Melchisedec means 'king of right-ness,' but don't be alarmed, mistakes will happen even at the baptismal font. . . . And you, sir?"

"Coast—Garret Coast."

"Congratulations," that has a human ring. And I am pleased to meet you! None the less, I owe him no gratitude who cheats me of a watery grave to freeze me to death. Upon my word of honor (whatever that may be), I cannot move. . . . anything except my jaw."

Laughing, Coast scrambled aboard the boat, and leaning out caught the man beneath the arms. After comely orable exertion on the part of both, he tumbled into the cockpit and incontinently, with a heavy sigh, collapsed on the deck, in a dead faint.

In alarm his rescuer dived below and returned with towels and a bottle of brandy. The latter being immediately resorted to, brought Mr. Appleyard back to consciousness.

"Very good stuff," he commented, half-strangled. "I had a premonition that my season-ticket on the water-wagon had run out. . . . I assure you I swallowed a cubic foot of Fairhaven harbor; all my insides are melted."

"Get up," said Coast, "get those clothes off and dry yourself. I'll lend you a blanket and a berth for the night."

"With all the pleasure in life," Coast took him down into the cabin, assigning him the starboard berth. "I trust you'll be comfortable," he said, with a solicitude not unmixed with wonder that so much fire and fortitude could inhabit a frame so frail and slight.

"Sure to be," Appleyard rolled himself luxuriously into his blanket and breathed deeply of his content. "But how can one feel at ease who strolls stark naked . . . about a perfect stranger's . . . private yacht. . . . and — orah! — makes himself at home without . . . so much as by your leave . . ."

"Don't," Coast started to reassure him. He was interrupted by a slight, but unquestionably sincere snore.

The Bawbee.

Englishmen are familiar with the name "bawbee," applied to the Scotch halfpenny, but to few does it bring the association of a baby queen and a loyal people. It appears that the first attempt at the portraiture of the unfortunate Mary, queen of Scots, was made in her infancy, and her small face was engraved upon the Scotch halfpenny at the time of her coronation in 1543, when she was but nine months old. A number of these small coins are still preserved, and it will be easily understood how the name "bawbee" or baby, came to be given to the coin bearing the effigy of the baby.

The halfpenny of Scotland is still commonly called the bawbee, although the baby face no longer appears on it—Pearson's.

The Wise Bride.

"Yes, the girls gave the bride a com-miseration shower."

"What in the world is that?"

"Why, they all told her how sorry they were she was going to marry such a man as the coming bride-groom."

"That must have hurt her feelings."

"No, it didn't. She knew there wasn't a girl there who wouldn't have given her eyes to get him!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ILL-FITTING LENSES INJURE THE EYE.

When one appreciates the delicate structure of the eye, it is easily seen that the use of imperfect, incorrect, or ill-fitting lenses actually injure the eye instead of giving relief. You have, probably, observed that most persons who have eye troubles and need glasses or spectacles, or who wear spectacles or eye glasses unsuited to their eyes, often suffer from nervousness and disorders peculiar to the nervous system. Out of nervousness and nervous troubles arise a multitude of other ailments often develop. The direct cause of all these disorders is nerve disturbance, which in many cases can be acted by immediate and proper attention to the eyes.

Would it not be sensible and rational to get at the cause of this condition? Would it not be wise to go to the source of this trouble—the eye—and relieve it so that the headache, nervousness and ill born of it will disappear?

If you are subject to headaches or nervousness, the chances are that it is caused by eyestrain, which can only be relieved by wearing glasses with specially ground lenses to fit your eyes.

But DON'T wear glasses unless prescribed and fitted by a reliable Optometrist or Oculist.
